Greetings

The previous weeks have been an exciting time for the Joseph Smith Papers as we released Revelations and Translations, Volume 4: Book of Abraham and Related Manuscripts, which you can read about in this newsletter. Also included in this issue are details about our latest web release and an article focusing on a document that Joseph Smith authored about baptism for the dead.

We appreciate your continued support of the Joseph Smith Papers and enjoy sharing the project's news as well as insights into the life of Joseph Smith. We also enjoy the opportunity to address smaller audiences. If you would like to have a staff member speak at an event, we have included a link to a form that will notify us of your interest.

Sincerely,

Ronald K. Esplin, Matthew J. Grow, Matthew C. Godfrey, and R. Eric Smith

Revelations and Translations, Volume 4 Now Available

We are pleased to announce the release of the latest volume of The Joseph Smith Papers. Revelations and Translations, Volume 4: Book of Abraham and Related Manuscripts tracks the development of the Book of Abraham from the time Joseph Smith and others purchased Egyptian papyri in 1835 through the publication of the Book of Abraham text and its accompanying illustrations in the church newspaper Times and Seasons in 1842.

Carthage Jail, June 26— <27> 1844,—
20 . Past 6 8. P. A. M.

Dear Emma<>

The Gov. continues his courtesies, and permits us to see our friends. We hear this morning that the Governor will not go down with his troops to day <(to Nauvoo)> as was anticipated last Evening, but, if he does come down with his troops to day you will be protected, — & I want you to tell Bro [Jonathan] Dunham to instruct the people to stay at home and attend to their own business<> and let there be no groups or gathering together unless by permission of the Gov— they are called together to receive communications from the Gov— which would please our people, but let the Gov. direct.— Bro Dunham of course, will obey the orders of the government officers, and render them the assistance they require. There is no danger of any "exterminating order" Should there be a meeting

“A Book . . . Which Shall Be Worthy of All Acceptation”

By Brett D. Dowdle, Volume Editor

In early September 1842, Joseph Smith was hiding in the home of Edward Hunter to evade arrest and extradition to Missouri on charges that he had conspired to assassinate former Missouri governor Lilburn W. Boggs. In this setting, on 6 or 7 September, Smith's mind returned to the subject of baptism for the dead and a promise he had made just days earlier to send additional instructions and “the word of the Lord” on the ordinance to the Latter-day Saints by mail.^[1] Taking advantage of his seclusion, Joseph Smith wrote a nine-page letter to the Saints—which will be featured in the forthcoming Documents, Volume 11—that systematized procedures for baptism for the dead and explained its doctrinal purposes and implications.
